

Students Promoting Activism and Recruitment Campaign

Identifying the problems

Identifying the problems

- Some smaller affiliates only exist of very few, mostly older doctors
- In some affiliates, the doctors don't know how to attract students
- In many affiliates, the resources for good recruiting campaigns are lacking
- In some active affiliates, there is no motivation to attract students
- In some affiliates, the student movements are solely run by the doctors
- In many countries, IPPNW is not known to medical students

Identifying our resources

- Many highly motivated young activists
- A lot of time on our hands
- International networking made easy by modern communication technology
- Existing, well-designed and thought-out structures
- Centres of increased student activism exist on every continent
- IPPNW generally supports student activism and recruitment

Identifying our limitations

- Multiple responsibilities and activities
- Limitations of time
- Limitation of financial resources for trips and information material
- Face-to-face meetings only at long intervals
- Hesitation amongst some affiliates to give students free hand
- High turn-over amongst student groups

Creating SPARC's

- Local recruitment and activism (founding and running IPPNW groups)
- Regional and national networking, recruitment and activities
- Increasing networking amongst elected NSRs, RSRs and ISRs
- Inter-affiliate projects and conferences
- Regional and international conferences and projects
- Outreach to other student organizations (e.g. IFMSA)

Local SPARCs

National SPARCs

Regional SPARCs

International SPARCs

Where do we go from here?